A foreign market not only involves the loss consequent upon distant transportation, but it is at best very limited and very variable, for there is not a nation in Europe which does not make it a point to raise its which does not make it a point to raise its own breadstuffs from its own soil. The West in this respect is very differently situated from the South. The latter has virtually a from the South. The latter has virtually a monopoly in her great staple; and the other nations have no home growth with which to make themselves independent of her. It is of comparatively little consequence—though we think of more consequence than she imagines—whether she has a home market or not; for she is sure of a foreign market.—The West has no such assurance. The West has no such assurance. The custom Europe accords to her is at best but contracted and precarious. A home market is her only substantial dependence.

The time is not far distant when she will realize this as she has never yet done. The great body of her Representatives and Senators have hitherto acted in opposition to all measures calculated to protect and foster the arts and manufactures of their own action and of the country at large. They have been accustomed to regard free trade in wheat as the summum benum of their industrial life, and have believed that the barometer of their prosperity and adversity hung nowhere but in Mark Lane. Hard experience is, we trust, gradually curing the West of this great mistake. She is learning the lesson that without the sdvantages of a large mechanical and manufacturing population in her own midst, or at least near at hand, as consumers, the damand for her products must be small in presenting to he weekly some contraction with which you far the appropriate demonstration with which you freelings of hope and satisfaction with which you fire aligns of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far this port, and in the lively fedings of hope and satisfaction with which you far thi have believed that the barometer of their prosperity and adversity hung nowhere but in Mark Lane. She is learning the lesson that without the advantages of a large mechanical and manufacturing population in her own midst, or at least near at hand, as consumers, the demand for her products must be small in proportion to her supply, and that she is constantly drained of her gold by paying for manufactured goods which she must have, and yet can pay for in no other way. She is fast finding that she will thrive best in and with the thrift of her own kith and kin.

VILIAINOUS.—We learn that on Saturday night, while the in train of the Chicago and Milwankee Railway was a few miles this side Milwankee Railway was a few miles this side of Racine, a stone was thrown into one of the windows of a car, and came very near injuring a passenger. This is the third time a similar offence has been committed on that road. This trick is getting altogether too common. It is not long since the same offence was commanted on the C., B. & Q. R. R., between Aurora and Batavia. A little lynch law would do good in such cases.—Chicago Democrat, 25.

Tux Baton Rouge Gazette has the following: "On the first trip down of that elegant packet the Charmer, a man got on at Rodney and took possession of a negro boy employed on the boat, whom he at once proceeded to tie with his hands behind him. It seems that the boy was the property of the man, in the process of lying, the man talked aloud, and gave his language the polish of an occasional eath. The boy said he; would scoure die than go with the man, to be treated as he had been, and soon after jumped into the river and was drowned. The boat was under headway, and stopped a moment; but the ne.

THE CITY.

Arrival and Reception of the Steamships Detroit & Mitwankee.

During the morning of Saturday the City presented the appearance of a great gala-day -and a very general impatience was manifested to catch a glimpse of the new steam-ships that were to arrive at 11 o'clock. Long before the hour announced for them to appear, the company's dock and the surrounding houses, sheds and coal piles were crowded with anxious spectators, straining their eyes towards the "atraight cut,"

About ten, or half-past, they were tele graphed in the distance by those having the highest look-outs, and shortly after the battery stationed at North point syllabled the The procession was preceded by the Amerifirst note of welcome followed by the field can Coronat Band, and was followed through piece of the Washington Artillery Company n Wisconsin street. The bells began to peal and by the time the vessels were fairly in the harbor a pretty general acclamation was being wafted to them from all parts of the city. The boat clubs swarmed about them as they came in, presenting a novel and highly spirited spectacle. The first Regiment of Wisconsin State Militia marched to the dock at the firing of the guns and were accompanied by a motely crowd of pedestrians and by vehicles of every conceivable sort. The two steamships having moored along side of the dooks occupied by the Detroit and Milwaukee Railway Co., at the foot of Milwankee street, and order having been somewhat restored upon the Milwaukes, the guests and a number of citizens, preceded by Mayor our people the approach of the crowded trains from the rich valley of the Red River of the North, and the distant Pacific coast. Mayor Page having concluded, the colors, which are truly elegant, being composed of the very best silk, were unfurled to the breeze, and as the stars and stripes unfolded to view, the most enthusiastic cheers went up from on board. Capt. Capss responded to Mayor Page as follows:

MR. MAYOR AND GENTLEMEN:—Accept a sailor's thanks for the handsome flags which you have presented to the boat which I have the honor to command. That boat is named after your beautiful city, and when you come to examine ker, I think you will admit that she is worthy of the name.

I have halled from Milwankee for many

In the meantime hearty cheers had been given by all on board, for the Detroit & Milwankee Railway Company, for Mayor PACE, the city of Milwankes, the new steamers, Capt. Caoss and Capt. McBRIDE, JULIUS Movius, the Newhall House, our guests, &c., &c. Mayor PAGE now announced that onenibusses were awaiting the guests to conduct them to the Newhall House, when the crowd began to move off, and the military companies marched back to the front of the Newhall House, where they separated and retired to their respective armories. The guests soon obtained quarters at the Newhall, and for awhile there was a temporary hill in the excitement occasioned by the arrival of the steamers. THE EXCURSION IN THE AFTERNOON.

The weather was not propitious for the exoursion in the afternoon, but nevertheless those, who participitated in it enjoyed it well. The wind, which was blowing from the north-west in the early part of the day, shift-ed into the north-east in the afternoon, and blew itself into a tolerably respectable gale. It was a good opportunity to test the seagoing qualities of the new steamers, and we briggspeak the sentiments of all on board when we say, that they far exceeded in this respect; the most sanguine expectations that had been excited in their favor. But our people do not yet fully appreciate the good qualities of the Detroit and Milioaukee, and hence the nor-caster Saturday, frightened a great many from taking part in the exenssion, themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a jaunt on the new steamers. Those who feared that the waves of old Michigan would toss the new vessels about like ordinary crafts, were much and gladly disdoes not thrive naturally: for now that the appointed. The feelings of both the young men, WAL-BRIDGE in particular, whom we know to be an honest and industrious fellow, and the Superintendent of a Sunday School in the town where he lives, may be better imagined than described under such circumstances .-But the end was not yet. GARLICE took Waldridge by the collar and dragged, rather than lead him down to Uncle Ben's store. but when he got there he discovered that the real thief had just been arrested, and that he had been abusing and misusing two innocent persons. Walbridge was so overcome by the shameful treatment of the policeman that he wept like a child. As Mr. Van Vechten had expected, the pickpocket came back to the store, after have ing changed his clothes, but was recognized and nabled, and on an examination before Judge Foore was committed in default of $500 bail, for trial. The other young men were of course discharged, but the policeman after having been fully convinced of his stupid blunder, had not the manhood to apologise for his unwarrantable conduct. We have simply stated the facts in this case as related to us by WALBRIDGE, who is ready to make oath to the truth of the statement, and in whose integrity we have every confidence. His story is also confirmed by the acknowledgement of several others of the police besides Garrick, who were pres

Punctuality.-It was announced or Wednesday, by telegraph and letter from Detroit, that the new steamships, Detroit and Milwaukee, would arrive at this port about 11 e'clock Saturday morning. The stiff northeast breeze and heavy sea, on that morning disposed many to think that the steamships could not reach here by the time appointed; but at precisely one minute past eleven, the Milwaukee entered our harbor, with the Detroit in company. This, we trust, is an earnest of what may be expected from these steamships in their every day trips. They commence running on the line to-day; the Detroit, leaving at noon, and the Milwaukee at 8 o'clock this evening.

service to the lake navigation. CELEBRATION OF SCHILLER'S BIRTHDAY. THE WARWATOSA OMNIBUS IS B great conenience, except when it doesn't run. Oftentimes the proprietor sends a back instead.— At the hour for starting, this back stands on the corner, where the omnibus should. They begin to wonder why it doesn't come, and sure enough it doesn't come. They step into VAN Corris, and enquire if they rightly understand the time of departure. They are told that the unpretending affair that quietly went off a w minutes before, took the place of the Wawatosa omnibus. They open their eyes, and their lower jaws fall. Sometimes they wear. Perhaps they had an appointment

If Mr. BROCKWAY would like to disabuse people of that notion, he can have his drivers blow a horn, as they used to before starting-particularly when they go out with a back instead of an omnibus. We don't see why the 'bus can't always be used. Suppose there are only half a dozen passengers-is the wear and tear of the bus an mportant item compared with that of a hack? Does it require half a pound more of wheel стеавн ? It would also be a great accommodation if the driver would blow a horn occasionally, when driving in, so that way passengers shall not have to keep on the look out, for quarter of an hour or more. "Reform it altogether."

AN ORACLE, NOT OF DELPHOS .- One of our most respectable, influential and veracicus citizens, who has been laboring for some time under an attack of melancholy. caused by the hard times, was startled out of sound sleep, the other evening, by a voice that seemed to float in at the window with the Lake breeze. His half-conscious faculties invested everything in the room with a ghostly proportion, and shuddering, he said, What art thou ? A spirit ?"

A long drawn sigh seemed to fill the room, then a musical undulation of the atmosphere reached his ear, with.

" A Being who desires your temporal welfare." " If so, inform me what I shall do to improve it.22

There was a lull, a rustling of the drapery about the bed as though the air was disturb ed, and then came a voice, sublimely grand, as the cadence of an organ, and solemn as the voice of prophecy, BUY YOUR GROCERIES AT LEDYARD'S!

OUR PEDESIRIAN "CRINELE" came in lown last Saturday to attend the steamship selebration, and was bitten by a terrier, the first thing. We shall not let him go out in the county again, till the dog has had plenty of time to run mad. "The little dogs and all" seem to be after NYM, as he himself said, in his last letter. He thinks he is in no danger, for he says the "tother one" that snaps at him from behind the screen in the Fox Lake Gazette office, is more rabid than this one, and he "still lives."

HANDSOMELY DONE .- Upon the arrival of the steamers Milwaukee and Detroit, on Saturday with some two hundred and fifty Eastern guests, the officers of the Milwaukee and Mississippi and the La Crosse R. R. Companies, tendered free passes to ail of the party who desired to visit the Upper Mississippi and St. Paul. Quite a number availed themselves of the opportunity to extend their trip through North-Western Wisconsin, to the Capital of Minnesota, and the "laughing waters; of Minnehaha.

THE WEATHER.-Saturday evening came on" to blow-it became suddenly raw,-it actually felt like October winds, and the latter part of October at that. The dust whirled and eddied down the streets-the signs creaked—and folks found extra coats and shawls quite comfortable.

BOARD OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS .- An adjourned meeting of the Board of School Commissioners will be held at their rooms, this, Monday, evening, at 7 o'clock. The Executive Committee will meet in the Secre tary's office at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 29, 1859 Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention will be held at the City of Madison, in the Assembly Hall of the Capitol on Wednesday, the Sist day of August next, at 12 o'clock M., for the purpose of nominating candidate or State officers to be supported by the party at the for state omners to we support a superior state of the substing general election; and to transact any other business that may properly come before it.

As the subject of selecting delegates to the next National Convention may be entertained and acted on by the Convention, it is suggested that the people in their primary cancuses, and the district conventions make sch expression as will intimate to their delegates a he State Convention, the general sentiment of the State Each Assembly District will be entitled to two delegates in the Convention.

It is recommended that District Conventions for the selection of delegates be held throughout the State, on or before the 25th day of August, and that committees nake early calls for that purpose; and it is especially urged that every district be duly represented in the

"Show us an intelligent family of boys an girls and we shall show you a family where newspapers and periodicals are plentiful"-says Emerson, and had the proposition read: show me a plentiful supply of newspapers and I will show you an intelligent community-it would have been equally true .-We therefore shall not be considered as treating of the subject hypothetically when we estimate the intelligence of Wisconsin by its

A community without a newspaper in the present age, is not unlike a man deprived of speech. And it must not only be a mute community, but its intellect must be weaker than the body whose organs hold daily or weekly converse with the wisdom of the world. Such a community is just such an one as folks are accustomed to read about in musty histories and antique black letter.

In making the attempt to classify the numerous journals of our State, one great diffionly has beset us. We found that newspapers multiplied faster than we could record them, and the subjoined list will therefore be so far deficient, that while it has been run ning through the press, new lights have sprung up, old oues have been extinguished, and combinations have been formed, of which we had no knowledge. But in the main the list will be found correct, and a glance over its various and euphonious items will be highly suggestive. No one will deny that the scope of the daily paper is wider, its meaning greater, and its influence more extended to-day than a year ago. The peculiar organization of American society-American life-demands a current education, and the newspaper has been made to fill the demand. Their prevalence shows conclusively the progress of ideas—their subject matter the demand for intelligence, not only commercial, but literary, religious, social and mechanical. No field is too obscure or remote to be treated of and affected by them. The village, with its scattered houses ranged among the unbroken tracts of the wilderness, must have its local press. How significant! In looking over the list of Wisconsin papers, one might reasonably be surprised at their number, but the surprise will sensibly dwindle into a conviction that the broad area covered by their circulation has been peopled by a community whose wants are of the head and the heart, as well as of the pooket, we shall recognize in the catologue an index of the inter nal knowledge, which is power, and must be short-sighted indeed, if we do not perceive in the future a plentiful crop of social and political prosperity, budding from what are now the future a plentiful crop of social and political prosperity, budding from what are now but the seeds of true freedom of mind and body.

Wankesha, w. Freeman.

Young America, Delafield, W. N. C.

Hawks.

The aggregate weekly issue of these papers read in an interval of leisure, but now it is a study. It outers into all the departments of human industry—no science so abstrase but the newspaper explains it, no branch of trade so insignificant but the newspaper mentions it. It deals out political economy, and has a tale for the nursery. It heralds the murriage of the unknown Snitt and conderms the conduct of an Emperor. It preaches, lectures and jokes; it builds platforms for the nation, and spins sentimental yarns for the million. It is wit for the withess, widoon for the foolish, a theory for the village orator and a companion for the statement was made, and copies sent to log abin and lies on the centre-table of the millionsire, alike dealing out its stores to all with an undiscriminate recultarity which is with an undiscriminate recultarity which is in male for the foolish, a life dealing out its stores to all with an undiscriminate recultarity which is a companion for the statesman. It builds with an undiscriminate recultarity which is a widen I have not of a favore and and mirable product and the proposed with the paper leaded to make a large read that it is a widen I have not of a favore and a companion for the withess, widen for the foolish, a theory for the withess, w with an undiscriminate regularity which is | Chambers. the best possible illustration of that theoretical equality of which we hear so much.

The Newspaper, regarded not as the crier of a party, or the advocate of the principles of a few, but in its higher sphere, as a medium of information for the people, as the cheapest edition of political and religious knowledge -it will no longer be aquestion whether the excessive multiplication is of any real value to a community, for everything that tends to cheapen knowledge and place its ad vantages within the reach of all classes must promote the welfare of the world. No fears need be entertained that wisdom will be corrupted or science degraded by being made servicable to general wants. Christianity has not suffered by being a religion for the people, nor Republicanism by being their politics. The same law will hold good in literature. Newspapers alone can become a great instrument for popular education and in their work we expect them to be triumphantly successful.-We give the names of the papers published in Wisconsin. Those in Roman are English publications.

TRUE ECONOMY.—London is about to spend Thue Economy.—Londonis about to spend $20,000,000 on draining her streets, on keeping lith from flowing into the Thames, and their incalculable influence, either for good, or for evil. And it must be a source of pride to the Wisconsin man, to know, in looking over the roll, that every member of the great body of WE'S, stands boldly forth, not only for political rights, but for moral and social reform—for humanity—for religion.

Thue Economy.—Londonis about to spend $20,000,000 on draining her streets, on keeping lith from flowing into the Thames, and on saving it for agriculture. This is probably the most extensive, the most economical sanitary reform ever attempted. Had one hundred millions, instead of twenty, been devoted to the purpose, there would have been no extravagance committed. Apart from the considerations of health, we have the fact that at present England, and with her most of the world, is rapidly exhausting her soil and giving nothing back in return.—

Every year sees agriculture becoming more Every year sees agriculture becoming more expensive, and food really dearer, owing to the destruction of the world's truest wealth. At present, a few guano beds offer temporary relief; but sooner or later we must fall back on the supplies afforded by cities, which are now wasted.

The following Indicrous scene, witnessed in Clark street yesterday, rivals in reality anything ever painted by novelist or playwright in the walks of fiction. A young gutter rat was passing by a fruit stand, and seeing a line watermelon, appropriated it and fied. The owner of the shop gave chase and rapidly overhauled him. The youth dropped the melon and put on additional speed. The owner finding it impossible to catch him, threw the melon at him, hitting him on the head and breaking it, (not the head) into numerous fragments. Apparently satisfied, he returned to his shop, and the boy seeing the coast clear, returned to the melon, and sitting down on the sidewalk, commenced devouring down on the sidewalk, commenced devouring down on the sidewalk, commenced devouring the places, as coolly as Marius amid theruins Carthage.—Chicago Times, 26th.

A GOSSIFFING CORRESPONDENT of the New York Herail wites that Mr. Seward has been sent for from Europe, to attend to his political interests, which are getting in a critical state. To make the story ridiculously absurd, he alleges that the great danger in this case arises from the present attitude of Douglas and from the fact that the latter is stealing the march of Seward, on the Slavery attended to the story thunder, and with reverberations that resembled through a sound of the state of the story thunder, and with reverberations that resembled through so much that the latter is stealing the march of Seward, on the Slavery attender the story thunder that the latter is stealing the march of Seward, on the Slavery attended through so much that the latter is stealing the march of Seward, on the Slavery attended through so the street that ing the march of Seward, on the Slavery attention, and making marvelous progress in the Northwest! If this last is the only ground of danger, the New York Senator need not hasten home. The Fall elections will show the Republican party of the Northwest to be stronger than ever before, while the Democracy are too disheartened and divided to have any reasonable hope of carrying a single Western State in 1860.—Cin. Oaz.

Stonificant Change of Name.—The history of the Democratic party can be read in the rames of its chief organ. At first it was the Globe, and concerned itself with the welfare of universal humanity. Then it became the Union, and devoted itself only to the United States. Now it is the Constitution, which is so interpreted as to leave more than half the country out of the consideration of the senotation for the senotation for the senotation of the consideration.

is so interpreted as to leave more than half is so interpreted as to leave more than half the consideration of government. Its next name will probably be the Administration, when it will have to make but one more change to become extinct, like its namesake.—Boston Traveler.

FURTHER HONORS TO LIEUT. MAURY .--The Emperor of France, a few weeks since, caused to be transmitted to Lieut. Maury a gold medal, bearing on one side the Emperor's effigy, and on the other an inscription highly honorable to the Lieutenant. This distinguished officer has just received from the King of Portugal an autograph letter, conferring upon him the degree of officer of the Tower and Sword, together with the beautiful insignia of the order.

Shouts of people discernible—ozone paper tinged brown—breeze flutering around thopping plainly heard—my ears begin to ache most violently, and shouts upon shouts upon shouts proceed from below—moving slightly west of south—I will descend and see what the people are shouting so for."

Here I came down, sixteen miles below Lafayette, in the midst of Grand Prairie. The people soon flocked together—men, women and children. I gave them each a slice of Here I had the top of her hauled down, and discovered that one of the three india rubber springs had snapped, and flew in under the valve clapper, causing the leakage aforesaid. This was repaired, and with the gas remaining in her, some 8000 entic feet, it was left standing until next day. It was then aunounced that the voyage and experiments should be made next day at 2 access P. M.

Inflated about three-fourths full, she carried me with 859 pounds of sand hallast, besides instruments and provisions. tallast, besides instruments and provisions. With a good Smithsonian barometer, there mometer, and with paper prepared to test the ozone of the upper air, provided by Chas. M, Wetherill, Analytical Chemist, I started under a very calm atmosphere, at 2 P. M, precisely. When I reached the clouds and passed up above them a short distance, I smelled what I inferred was ozone. The barometer stood at 22, and as the thermometer hung in the sun, I omitted its notings, though it ranged from 94 deg. at starling, to 66 deg. for the first two hours. After scanning the country round as well as I could, through the wast defiles in the clouds below, and remaining poised—fixed in space, for more than an hour, all the white over the city of Lafayette, I made the following notes in my log book. As I never followed my log literally heretofore in my narratives, I will in this quote a portion of it as written above, and will designate those portions as quotations:

"While up in the lonely, heavenly regions of the clouds, feeling pious and gladdened, the thought occurred to me, that my friends below wondered why I was not going on my wind, not a breath—my palm-leaf fan puts, her slightly in motion—revolving slovenly to and fro. I am hungry—food tastes delicious.

Below—between the white fleecy clouds—true emblems of God's pure works—brilliant the complete correction of the country was attained at a harometrical height, being my last bar, obroluntary excianations. There is a physical cause for this. The animal system expands under diminished atmospheric pressure.—

With me it never fails to produce exhibitation. The brain becomes active—the blood chroniates more rapidly—the organs of the five senses become energetic and more acute, and the mind becomes illuminated as it were the conclusion.

and the mind becomes illuminated as it were by something that brings to recollection, with the rapidity of lightning, all the concomitants of the subject passing through it.

I have frequently, heretofore, determined, when sailing through these peculiarly formed cloud-fields, which never fail to produce these exhiberations in me, to publish the full log of exclamations and adorations that they bring forth with an insuppressible spontaneity, but my judgment always forbade me when I got down. After descending to the earth, it is ever followed by a languor that acts the other way.

To prevent misunderstanding in this connection, I must be explicit in saying that this occurs more particularly when sailing among, and above, these vast galleries of nimbus clouds. The study of these clouds is worthy the particular attacking of these msterology.

After feasting my eyes for awhile again, the following notes were made: "I don't care where i go, the view is becoming more graud."

Here I rose until the bar, told 20,3, "Flies are having around me. They are shown.

for it in no other way.

"8 o'clock 55 minutes. Just got through one of those erostatic freaks that put all experience at defiance; after shoreling overboard nearly fifty pounds of sand, and the balloon, from a completely filled distension of a few minutes previous, is now quite flaccid in her lower hemisphere, and is brought to a stand at bar. 25.8. "Should of people discernible—ozone paper tinged brown—breeze flattering around me—cow bells jingling below me—wood can account for it in no other way.

These persistent nimbus clouds, standing, apparently, in a circular form, without motion or alteration, puzzles my comprehension. Neither increase or diminution accompanied them. Nature lad taken a rest over the Grand Prairie, and pavillioned it with a garment of the most brilliant costume that reflected and refraced light could invest it with. Behind this great belt of cloud pyramids there appeared an ashen-colored ring or outer belt, seen between the pyramidical pillars; and to the east only, there appeared a sheet of inclined stratus clouds.

Could the great plantic have anything to do with this? I never saw its like before in so striking and characteristic a form. I have seen the nimbus often in groups, but they

seen the nimbus often in groups, but they were always changing, both in place and shape, as well as in dissolution and composi-tion, but in this, as stated above, the whole mass was stationary.

Above here there was not the slightest Above here there was not the slightest manifestation of ozone. The paper kept its unsitered white color. My nose suffered very much from its membranes becoming parched, and aithough the atmosphere was cold, being 53 deg. in the shade, and the bar. at 18, there appeared to be something, present or absent, that produced in my system the phenomenon of fever. My lips were swollen and parched, my flesh was all unwrinkled, smooth and lilled out under the skin like a youth's.

There appeared to be a stagnation in the stmosphere, and the impression was inevitaworth a lifetime's laudation of a thousand overboard. It made an admirable parachute that it miles trip."

Such were the cogitations while standing in space, and permit me to say here, that most of these cogitations break out into involuntary exchanations. There is a physical break below drifting it in that direction. I preeze below drifting it in that direction. I pulled the valve of Jupiter and followed, and som overtook the mail. We kept near together all the way down, as I could regulate the descent of the balloon to the descent of the parachite, and both the aerial machines lamied within fifty feet of each other on the public road six nolles south of Crawfordsville, laked descript being a read of the property of the prope

Lancaster, Aug. 22, 1859. John Wise. WHAT HOLLANDERS THINK OF BOR-HATE'S HOLLAND BUTTES. - J. QUINTES, Editor of the Sheborgan Nieucoboile, in a letter dated September 6th, 1854, thus remarks:-"You will observe that I have unblished several cer tificates lately. These are not mere 'putts,' but literally true; and should you continue advertising with us, you may expect to secure large orders, from every Holand settlement in the United States."

This is no extract from one of the many letters re selved from the Holland settlements, Surely when Hallanders recommend the Holland Bitters so warmly is worthy the particular attention of the meteorologist. Their habitudes and action, connected with the wonderful power they possess of reflecting heat, and their very persistent characteristic of fixedness, throws around them a mystery that requires explanation, to the progress and perfection of the science of insteorology.

Night after night I was bathed in swent; so that I was, when I came under your treatment, little hetter than a "withered bud," I commenced the use of the Ready Relief, Ronovating Resolvent, and Regulators, which I got from Dr. J. The first night I took the Relief and Resolvent, I slept in peace. I have had no distress from my cough since that night. In two weeks I was completely restored. WEEDING TURNIPS. Last week we said something about thin-ning turnips. It is equally important they should be carefully weeded—kept scrupu lously free from weeds. It is a foolish idea that because a crop is sown broadcast it is annecessary to use the hoe or pull the weeds. It is not only more important that care should be taken to thin out the plants, but it is of far greater importance that the hoe is made to do its duty there. It is wonderful what a term of the plants is the state of the plants of the plants. do its daty there. It is wonderful what a per cent the investment of a little muscle among root crops yields, or adds to the aggregate result. It should be remembered that weeds are great gourmands, and appropriate a great quantity of food that belongs to the turnip unless they are ent down or dug up. Stirring the soil is no damage to this crop. Keep the turnip patch clean, boys.

- TRAINING ONEN. The extract from an essay recently read the before a Massachusett Farmers' Club, may be of use to some of our country readers:

A word on training oxen. I have found that by fur the best time to train steers is when they are calves, say the first winter.—Oxen that are trained when quite young are lower that are trained when quite young are lower that are trained when quite young are and this adds much to their value. Steers that run and they are three or four years old are dangerous animals to encounter. They are always running away with the eart or sled of the serious injury is the result. I would be often so instituted the serious injury is the result. I would be often serious injury is the result. I would be often serious injury is the result. I would be imprudent were he to some others often mererly training them. I have observed that very training them. I have observed that very intitle attention is paid by our farmers to train their steers to back, but as they become able to draw a considerable load forward, they are often unmerchially beaten on the head and are, because they will not back a cart or sled with as laspea load as they candeux forward, they are often unmerchially beaten on the head and the possibility of the serious injury is the result in the series to back, but as they become able to draw a considerable load forward, they are often unmerchially beaten on the head and the series to be a state of the series of the series of the series to be a state of the series of the series of the series to be a state of the series of the ser efore a Massachusetts Farmers' Club, may be of use to some of our country readers :

should we not teach them for the time when we want them thus to lay out their strength? Besides, it often saves blows and vexations, which is considerable when one is in a hurry. I never consider a pair of oxen well broken until they will back with ease any reasonable toad, and I would give a very considerable sum more for a yoke of oxen thus tutored, than for a yoke not thus trained.

EXTIRPATING THISTLES FROM GRASS LANDS To me there have appeared few things more extraordinary in the history of farming knowledge than the perverse tenacity with which prejudice has so long preferred the scythe to the roller in keeping down thistles. In the North Riding of Yorkshire, as far back as forty years ago, the roller was an improved instrument for destroying thistles in pasture grounds; and most effective was it found to be, the bruise and crush of the top of the plant extending its mortification to the root. No doubt of it, the scythe makes a clean sweep, so does a surgeon when he cuts a leg off; but let a crushed leg remain attached to the body, and the undertaker will assuredly have employment.—A Correspondent of the Field.

LAWNS. To me there have appeared few things more extraordinary in the history of farming

LAWNS.

Nothing but cutting frequently will make the lawn, which is the most important feature of your grounds, what it ought to be.— You may shirk the mowing, plant expensively, trim industriously, make flower beds, and bed them out at great expense, but if you neglect your grass, the place will always have as ill an appearance as a locking glass without a frame. Frequent moving induces root growth, and the grass is less likely to burn in hot, dry weather, than when left to itself. CORN FODDER.

OGR FODER.

It will not be long before the corn harvest will commence. The suffering that resulted last year from a want of fodder should be remembered and provided against. The providence commences with the grain harvest—Hay is not the only source of food for stock. It is an important question to determine whether it is not more profit to cut yn the It is an important question to determine whether it is not more profit to cut up the corn before it is matured, than allow it to stand until frost shall have rendered the stalks worthless as a forage crop. Corn if fairly glazed may be out up without damage to the grain. But the foliage of corn once frosted is worthless, nearly, for any such purpose. It is proper to advise the husbandry of this important resource for food for stock. The farmer who has a large stock of cattle cannot fail to appreciate the value of this immense error of nutricious food. Make preparations early to secure it. Watch closely the progress of the grain, and as soon as glazed out it up and set it in stocks. It will pay to do so, especially if you have a large giazed out it up and set it in stooks. It will pay to do so, especially if you have a large stock of cattle; if not, purchase enough to eat the forage resulting from your corn crop. It will yield a large amount of available manure, which will be wasted and worthless if left in the field exposed to the haps of winter. Prepare beforehand to take care of the corn fodder.—Prairie Farmer.

EXPERIENCES OF IMPRESONMENT.—The following is an extract from Count Gonfallconier's account of his imprisonment:
"Fifteen years I existed in a dungeon ten fast square! During six years I had a more "Fifteen years I existed in a dungeon ten fast square! During six years I had a companion; during nine I was alone! I never could rightly distinguish the face of him who shared my captivity in the eternal twilight of our cell. The first year we talked incessantly together; we related our past lives, our joys forever gone, over and over again. The next year we communicated to each other our thoughts and ideas on all subjects. The third year we had no ideas to communicate; we were beginning to lose the power of reflection. The fourth, at the interval of a month or so, we would open our lips to ask each other if it were possible that the world went on as gay and bustling as when we formed a part of mankind. The fifth we were silent. The sixth he was taken away—I never knew where—to execution or liberty.

were silent. The sixth he was taken away—
I never knew where—to execution or liberty.
But I was glad when he was gone; even solitude was better than the pale vacant face.—
One day (it must have been a year or two after my companion left me) the dungeon door was opened, whence proceeding I knew not, the following words were uttered: 'By order of his Imperial Majesty, I intimate to you that your wife died a year ago.' Then the door was shut, and I heard no more; they had but flung this great agony upon me, and left me alone with it.'

STREET RAILROADS IN PHILADELPHIA.—. Philadelphia correspondent writes in rela-on to the Railroads in the streets of that

What a peculiarity of mechanics it is that leads the way to the othone adaption soon leads the way to the others. Progression is indeed the order of the ers. dav. day. Twenty-five years ago the man who introduced the ormitus among us was Laifed a public benefactor. But the omnibus is now obsolete—we hats the very sight of it. The disposed—we have the very sight of it. In-city railroads have inaugurated a new era of social comfort, but even they are threatened with revolutionary tendencies, though bar-ip one year in use. The New York locomotive fire engine performs so wall whenever it turns out, that it has set our inventors and mechan-icate theiring admiring and declining here. out, that it has set our inventors and mechanics to thinking, planning and devising how to extend its great capabilities to new purposes. One is seeking to construct a machine for common roads, and has made some inprovements in the axies. Two others are provements in the axies. Two others are engaged in making light engines to supersede horses on the city roads. One of these, with vertical boiler, consumes its own smoke, and is managed by a single driver. It will be a sort of locomotive dummy, as it is boxed up so as to look like an ordinary car, with a small stovepipe in the top, and will condense its steam without noise. It will occupy the space on the track filled by two horses, will heat the cars in winter, and cool them by a fau in summer, besides raising no dust. To ULEANSE WOOL FOR HONE USE.

A correspondent of the Raral New-Yorker furnishes the following recipe for cleansing wool, which may benefit our readers:

"Two pails of rain water; one of urine; one pint of sail—heat all to scalding heat. Put in the wool, str with a stick and lat it remain for about thirty minutes. Take it out with a stick and lay on a board to drain. Have the board so arranged on the side of the tub or kettle that the liquor will run back in the same. After the first kettle full is taken out, add more water, urine and sait, tokeep up the strength of the liquor, and proceed as before. The longer the liquor is used the better. Soft soap, or lye from ashes, will answer in the place of urine, or may be used with them—The liquor must be strong enough to dissolve the gum or oil on the wool so as to rinse off chem. It is of no benefit to pick it."

weeping runners. which he can do without elevating the latter more than six inches, thus saving the space occupied by the horses. Noise and smoke will both be dispensed with by peculiar contrivances and the use of coke. What is to become of the heat from the hoiler we don't know, unless it be driven out of the car by a fan, an event likely to happen to passengers also in case of a blow up. This engine is to cost no more than a pair of omnibus horses, and so comes very cheap. These several contrivances have been brought to the notice of the city road officials, and the prospect is fair that something may grow out of the matter.

Mr. Dickens will read sixty times in this country, and in character, so that we shall have kim in Quilp. Sampson Brass, Mr. Pecksniff, Jones Chuzzlewit, Montague, Tigg, Mr. Stitglins, Mr. Swiveller, Mr. Guppy, and the rest of those amiable creatures who have so delighted the world. He will hardly appear in his American characters, namely, Mr. Chotlop, Guneral Choke, Mr. Scadder, Major Pawkins, M. Lafayette Kettle, Mrs. Hominy, and the others of those "bright occidental stars" who shone over Scadder's Eden, and pointed the way there, though precious careful to keep out of it themselves. We would, for our own part, rather hear Mr. Dickens read his "American Notes," and those portions of "Martin Chuzzlewit" that relate to us, than anything else that he ever wrote; they are so clever, and Notes," and those portions of "Martin Chuzzlewit" that relate to us, than anything else that he ever wrote; they are so clever, and hit so hard, and often so justly; but the prejudices of some others are probably not quite so conquerable as ours, and we shouldn't advise him to try the "American dodge" in American land. So long as he shall confine himself to the showing up of English rogues, he would be very successful here, but it would be imprudent were he to assail the weakness of a sovereign people of the United States. In one of his works he speaks of "a United States security" being the type of everything that is utterly worthless, and that would not be exactly the best passage to read to a Yankee audience, because they would know that "a United States security" is the best thing of the kind that ever was heard of, the national government having always paid its debte, and rather more than paid them in full. The words occur in "The Christmas Carol," one of his best productions, and which he is especially fond of reading in public, because he reads it well. He will do well to pass it by here.—
